1.1 Revision History

Publicatieversie 1.0 (26-02-2019)

1.2 Concept

A legal situation can concern a legal status and/or representation.

The legal status indicates the basis on which the patient is staying in a healthcare organization. This can be either voluntary or involuntary, however the legal status is always determined by a judge.

Representation is important in situations where a person is legally not competent to give permission and/or factually (partly) incapable of doing so. A representative supports and takes decisions in the interest of the representee when they cannot do so themselves (temporarily or permanently).
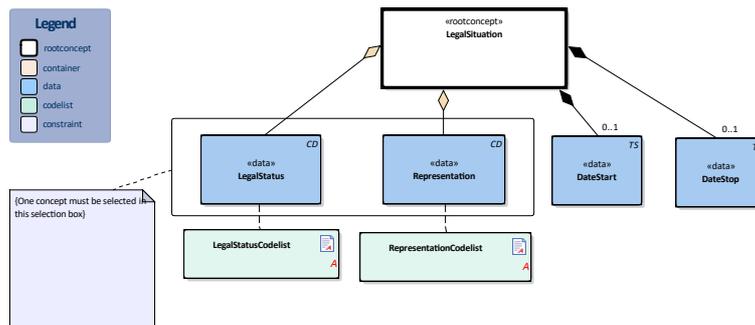

1.3 Mindmap

1.4 Purpose

Health professionals must be aware of the existence of a legal status or representation because this in part determines what type of care can be provided to the patient. For example, a supporting legal status can be required for using freedom restricting measures. For a mentally incompetent patient, it must be clear that there is a representative for further decision-making: in this case, the health professional should follow the decision of the representative of the mentally incompetent patient, unless this is incompatible with the care of a good health professional.

«data»	Representation
Definitie	In some situations, a person is legally not competent to give permission and/or factually (partly) incapable of doing so. A representative supports and takes decisions in the interest of the representee when they cannot do so themselves (temporarily or permanently). The representative should involve the patient as much as possible in the fulfillment of their tasks and the factual capability of the patient must be honored as much as possible. The Wgbo (Dutch law) determines who are able to become representatives as well as an enforced order. The code of the legal representation is based on the Vektis/AZR code list COD232-VEKT Legal Status.
